PROGRAM REPORT

Name of the Program: A One Week Faculty Development Program on “Writing of Research Proposal for Funding Project: Opportunities, Challenges, and Future Aspects”

Resource Person:

Mr. Sultan Ali Basha
Associate Professor
Dept. of Pharmacology,
Safa College of Pharmacy, Kurnool.

Phone No: +91 7989 009 290

Duration: 04-01-2021 to 09-01-2021 (6 Days)

No. of Participants:42

MIPER hosted a comprehensive five-day Faculty Development Program (FDP) focusing on the "Writing of Research Proposal for Funding Project: Opportunities, Challenges, and Future Aspects." The program was conducted by Mr. Sultan Ali Basha, an accomplished expert in research proposal writing and project funding, with the goal of guiding faculty members on the intricacies of crafting successful research proposals to secure project funding.

The primary objective of the FDP was to equip participants with the skills and knowledge necessary to develop compelling research proposals capable of attracting project funding. Mr. Sultan Ali Basha provided insights into the opportunities and challenges associated with proposal writing, along with a forward-looking perspective on the future trends in research funding.

Mr. Sultan Ali Basha commenced the program by providing an overview of the current funding landscape, both nationally and internationally. Participants gained insights into various funding sources, including government grants, private foundations, and collaborative initiatives.

The FDP focused on breaking down the key components of a successful research proposal. Participants were guided through the process of crafting clear research objectives, developing a robust methodology, articulating the project's significance, and creating realistic timelines and budgets. The Resource person shared practical strategies for effective proposal writing, emphasizing clarity, conciseness, and alignment with the goals of funding organizations. Participants engaged in hands-on exercises to apply these strategies to their own research proposals. The program addressed common challenges encountered in the proposal development process. Participants learned how to identify potential pitfalls and were provided with strategies for overcoming obstacles to ensure the submission of a compelling and competitive proposal.

A forward-looking perspective was provided on the evolving trends in research funding. Mr. Sultan Ali Basha discussed emerging areas of interest for funding agencies, technological advancements shaping research priorities, and strategies for aligning proposals with future research directions. The FDP encouraged active participation through group discussions, case studies, and personalized feedback sessions. Participants had the opportunity to work on their own research proposals, receiving guidance and constructive feedback from Mr. Sultan Ali Basha and their peers.

Conclusion

The five-day FDP on "Writing of Research Proposal for Funding Project: Opportunities, Challenges, and Future Aspects" by MIPER, led by Mr. Sultan Ali Basha, was highly successful in providing faculty members with practical insights and skills necessary for successful grant proposal writing. Faculty members from various colleges attended the five-day FDP program. The program not only addressed the immediate needs of participants in securing funding for their projects but also equipped them with a forward-thinking perspective to navigate the ever-evolving landscape of research funding. MIPER's commitment to fostering research excellence through such initiatives is evident, and it is anticipated that the impact of this FDP will be reflected in the success of faculty members in securing funding for their research projects.
